

rounded shoulders. It is useless to think of giving a description of each lady. Suffice it to say that all looked surprised.

nice it to say that all looked exquisitely rich, and a more cheerful and pleasant party never entered the Cave. The manner in which Mrs. Miller (a lady 60 years old) got along excited the admiration of all. She traveled the entire length of the Cave, and returned, seemingly less fa-tired than any of the party. Thos.
 Maize, of Louisville, will long be remembered for his ever ready wit and funny sayings. There are now seventy persons at the Cave, and stage loads are arriving and entertaining all the time. The ball room is usually filled in the evenings with gay and festive parties, all of whom seem to enjoy themselves hugely. Splendid music is provided, and the visitor is cared for in a thousand pleasant ways.

Col. Proctor, a McCoy, and Col. Hoblitzell have my kindest regards for favors extended to me. I shall never regret my visit to Mammoth Cave.

Respectfully,
FLUG.

KENTUCKY FARMERS ASSOCIATION.—Saturday afternoon, a large number of the farmers of Jefferson county met in the room over Walker's Exchange. The following report from a special committee was adopted:

With a view of mutual improvement, and for the purpose of acquiring a correct and practical knowledge of a better system of agriculture, founded upon experience, and the application of well-established truths, we, the undersigned, do hereby establish at the city of Louisville, county of Jefferson, Ky., a Board of Agriculture and Farmers' Exchange, the general designs and duties of which shall be to acquire and to diffuse among the citizens useful information on subjects connected with agriculture, in the most general and comprehensive sense of that word; to ameliorate the system of culture, and the infusion of a system by which the producer will be enabled to realize fair prices with the least possible hindrance.

CHURCHES IN THE INDIAN TOWNS

As our readers are advised, that most dreaded disease, the Asiatic cholera, broke out in a very malignant form among the various tribes in the Indian Territory, lying to the south of Kansas. From Indian Agent George A. Reynolds, of the Seminoles, we obtain some interesting facts in relation to the ravages of the disease, and the manner in which several

The disease raged most violently at Fort Gibson, where the agent of the Cherokees and the Surgeon of the post died. Out of a population of 200, the deaths numbered 117, or about 57 per cent of the whole population. At Fort Arbuckle the deaths numbered 60 soldiers and 75 Caddo Indians in the immediate vicinity. When the disease appeared among the Seminoles, about 125 miles southwest of Fort Gibson, Agent Reynolds assembled the tribe in council, and informed them of the nature of the disease, that its attacks usually proved fatal, but that undue excitement, exposure, over-eating, and improper diet, in a majority of cases, were the cause of its attacks.

He told them to come to him when any of them felt symptoms of an attack, and he would prescribe such remedies as he might have. Unfortunately, his stock of drugs and medicines was considerably less than that of the wholesale drug emporiums of this city. But after reading up everything he could find on the subject, and in connection with the very intelligent and worthy trader of the tribe, Mr. E. B. Brown, a prescription was compounded of camolene, camphor, and opium, in equal proportion, in bulk. What would be considered a "big dose" of calomel was measured out, and the camphor and opium, each equal in bulk, were compounded with the calomel, and administered at intervals of an hour. Mr. Brown, with this prescription, cured about twenty cases, among the number the wife of the chief of the Seminoles.

As a consequence of these almost miraculous cures, the tribe have voted Mr. Brown a great "medicine man," and think he is the most "powerful" man in all that country, and would no doubt consider it a great honor to adopt him in their tribe. Much credit is due Mr. Brown for his generous assistance to the Indians during the prevalence of the disease. Whenever a case appeared he promptly visited the person attacked, administered his medicine, compounded by rather "raw hands," it must be admitted, did all in his power to relieve them, and actually cured twenty cases, where parties were attacked appar-

Is there any limit to human ingenuity? An Englishman has devised a plan for supplying the residents of crowded cities with fresh country air, imported at so much per cubic foot, and laid on in pipes, or air the world like Croton water. A net work of underground tubes, radiating from some place beyond the reach of the foul exhalations of the town, is to run down the east, west, north, and south emaciated, occupants of tenement houses, a cellar, need only turn a faucet, and the break of the daisies and the odor of new money will rush in to revive and strengthen them. To be sure, they will all be apt to get dreadful colds, and breathing in a house where the air is turned on would probably be something like inhaling the vapors from an active pair of blacksmith bellows; but what a startling thing it is to think of counter-air being hawked

The gospel of marriage and maternity which the eloquent father Hyacinthe has recently been preaching to the licentious and loose-living Parisians with such brilliancy and power has been producing a great effect among the fashionable classes. It has induced multitudes of persons, of both sexes to revise the irregular or heteric relations they were maintaining with each other, and has resulted in a large crop of marriages among people who had previously ignored the ceremony. At the same time it has affected the Parisian women favorably toward children, and has resulted in a decrease of those abominable practices of infant destruction which prevails largely in all licentious cities. We are glad to hear these things of Paris. Father Hyacinthes are needed in other cities besides Paris.

A tumbler roared the first of the week, robbed one of the rich Presbyterian churches of its carpets. He opened the house, and, lighting it as if for evening service, took the carpets from the aisles, and loaded them upon a truck standing at the door.
